

Joshua Vossler - joshua@joshuavossler.com

How to use fears & hatreds

Step 1:
List fears & hatreds

Step 2:
Choose one and describe reasons
behind that fear or hatred

Step 3:
Compare reasons to list of information literacy topics

Step 4:
If you find a match, make an analogy.

Information Literacy Topics

Search Strategies

Narrowing Topics

Locating Books

Getting Help

Selecting Appropriate Sources

The Information Cycle

Evaluating Sources

Citation

Intellectual Honesty

Using Databases

EQUIPMENT

Hardware:

Sound: Olympus Linear PCM Recorder LS-11

Video: Panasonic HMC40

Editing: 21" iMac with 4TB external storage

Software:

Editing: Final Cut Pro

Hosting: Vimeo.com

REFERENCES

Carter, J. (1989). Stand-up comedy: The book. New York, NY: Dell.

Leamson, R. (2000). Learning as biological brain change. Change, 32(6), 34-40.

Leamson, R. (1999). Thinking about teaching and learning: Developing habits of learning with first-year college and university students. Sterling, VA: Stylus.

Vossler, J., & Sheidlower, S. (2011). Humor and information literacy: Practical techniques for library instruction. Santa Barbara, CA: Libraries Unlimited.

One thing you hate:

One thing you fear:

Why do I hate or fear this thing?

How is my hatred or fear like an information literacy concept?